GREENSBORO N.C. - A report from the Greensboro News & Record suggests more than 1,000 people are homeless on any given night in Greensboro.

According to the paper, the group called Partners Ending Homelessness counts the number of homeless people once a year. This year, the group counted 1,064 homeless people.

The group said the number could be higher because some people decline to take the survey and others can't be found during the 24-hour survey period.
