

Concert raises money for bus passes
Amanda Lehmert
News & Record

July 9, 2009

GREENSBORO – You’ve heard of singing for your supper. But how about singing for bus passes?

That’s what T. Dianne Bellamy-Small did.

The councilwoman and trained mezzo soprano lent her voice to a concert in honor of black music month June 28.

The proceeds will go to purchase 900 bus passes for the city’s homeless day center – a cause Bellamy-Small championed. The center will open this fall.