

Program Prevents High Point Children from Going Hungry

Sarah Lanse

4/16/2010

WFMY News2

High Point, NC -- A new program will help High Point children at risk of going hungry.

Second Harvest Food Bank and the United Way of Greater High Point teamed up for the Backpack Program.

It provides elementary school children with backpacks full of nutritious food to take home on weekends during the school year.

The program is the first one in High Point and 16th of its kind in Northwest North Carolina.