Salvation Army Center of Hope Shelter to Success Program ~ Greensboro - Residents who continue past the initial 30-day probationary period will continue their probationary period for 90 days. During this time they are expected to find and/or maintain employment, participate in life skills training classes, save relative income, and meet regularly with their assigned case manager. Case Management will work with families during this time to formulate educational and/or training goals, employment plans, financial budgeting plans, and family parenting goals.

At the satisfactory completion of the 90-day period, residents who have achieved the established goals will be considered "shelter stabilized". In order to move to this level of the program, clients must demonstrate a willingness to be active, positive members of the community, interested in both giving and receiving peer support, motivated to make realistic changes in their lives, amenable to community living and being supportive of other residents, and not have a danger to the health or safety of other residents. At least one parent in the family must be employed and working at least 35 hours per week. At this level, Case Management will continue to work with families to formulate educational and/or training goals, employment plans, financial budgeting plans, and family parenting goals but the major service focus will then turn to the location and acquisition of permanent or long-term housing based on the needs and barriers of each client.

Once the client has succeeded into permanent housing, continuum of care will be provided for an additional 6 months.

An extensive, goal oriented program is set up for each family with intensive case management. Participants are expected to fully participate by keeping their living space clean, finding steady employment, and seeking counseling.
